ActivityAlert* provides communication and schedule management for teams, clubs and groups. Save hours a month using email and automatic calling, with receipt confirmation, to ensure your members *Get the Message!

ActivityAlert is a web service combining Internet and Telephony technology to manage the communication among the coordinator of an activity (team, club, group, etc.) and the activity's participants. ActivityAlert eliminates the tedious task of tracking whether or not a participant has received an email or a voice message, greatly simplifying the communication process within an activity. This service benefits the coordinator by easing the burden of distributing information and benefits the participant by ensuring that important information is received in a timely manner.

ActivityAlert* combines email tracking, voice messaging, automatic call tree and its Active Calendar to support the critical process of communication within an activity. This ensures that even without access to a computer, ActivityAlert can get the message through!

ActivityAlert's web site is used to set up the activities schedule via its calendar and to enter and track all messages sent to members. Activity coordinators enter information into the Activity log as a message, select the group and designate its priority. ActivityAlert will email all or a subgroup of members and track which members access the message. If the message is a high priority, such as a game being cancelled, the activity coordinator may call a toll free number and record a message to be automatically sent to the members. For those members that have not accessed it by a set time, ActivityAlert will call them based upon their contact preferences and play the message.

ActivityAlert is essential for members of an activity. Members may view a personalized schedule of events related to their activities and those of any registered family members. Event conflicts are automatically identified on the Active Calendar. Members create a contact preference profile and may enter multiple email addresses and phone numbers, all of which can be kept confidential. Members have access to the activity log to review messages and may email the coordinator or other members. Once a registered member of ActivityAlert, users may join an activity and respond to messages with just a click of their mouse or a press of a phone key.
